1989 will be recalled as the year of the economic downturn

Events pile up, one on top of another, and the newspaper reports them weekly, without being able to say to its readers which stories relate to trends and which are simply momentary occurrences. In this year-end wrap-up, however, The Citizen's editorial staff attempted to rank the year's stories from 1 to 10 in terms of which issues—the past year—and which issues—will likely have lasting impact on our lives and on our towns.

#1 Economy slows down

Whereas the local economy was on a roll from 1985 through 1987, consumers nationwide began curtailing their spending following the stock market crash of October 1987. Signs of sluggishness began appearing in the local economy in the summer of 1988 and the Christmas shopping spurge of that year didn't happen.

Economic activity continued to decline in the Local, the result of a lack of summer demand and higher interest rates was felt first in the real estate market.

Real estate transactions in Newry, which had peaked at 296 in 1986 slumped to 219 in 1988 and will likely be lower when 1989 totals are in.

Norway, where real estate transactions peaked at 335 for 1987, saw sales drop to a total of 283 in 1988. Sales of Bethel houses fell from a high of 198 in 1986 to 251 in 1988.

The weakness in the real estate market manifested itself in the numbers of multi-unit and commercial projects approved by the Bethel Planning Board but left undeveloped by the developers. As reported by The Citizen last summer, among the largest of these were the Bear Creek shopping center on Bridge Street and the Mill Brook Sunday River mini-mall on the Sunday River Road. The Bethel Inn trimmed back its country club condominium plans by holding off on 20 units already approved. Mill Brook condominiums—50 units off Bridge Street—was never started and is up for sale. The 40-unit Shallowbrook condominium project off the Rabbit Road was also put on hold. In Newry, a 22-unit project on the hillside between the Sunday River valley and the Bear River valley was brought to the Planning Board but recently has dropped from discussion.

The decline in local construction activity meant that tradespeople found themselves with more leisure time than in years past.

Workers in some of the wood turning mills found themselves with too much leisure time. The second shift at Gilbert Mfg. Co., in Locke Mills, was suspended in October of this year, resulting in 20 workers being laid off.

Workers at the Stowell mill, in Bryant Pond, had been laid off in late 1988 when the mill was shut down. The mill property was auctioned off early in 1989 but no plans have been announced for its future use.

The Town of Wiscasset suffered a loss, as did the displaced workers, as taxes due were not fully paid.

Also ceasing operations this past year was The Marketplace grocery store, in Locke Mills, and Martha's Restaurant, in Bethel.

Much of the bad economic news could be traced to the fact that the skiers did not show up last winter in the droves that had been expected. Although Sunday River and Mt. Abram had reported a significant increase in their ski business, the local tourism industry generally complained about too few visitors.

The cause of the shortfall in visitors was said to be the dearth of snowfall. Sunday River measured a mere 80 inches of natural snow at the base of the mountain (93 inches at the top). Generally the skiway gate between 1100 and 1500 feet of elevation was open, while the lack of natural snow didn't affect the quality of the skiing, because of the abundance of man-made snow, it took the edge off the skiing appetites of city folk, who looked out their windows at bare sidewalks and thought about staying home and watching TV rather than going off to the mountains.

But as the seasons changed, it was clear that the number of visitors was not as abundant as normal; this made it clear to all concerned that more than the whims of Mother Nature was at work.

This past fall, state officials finally announced the bad news that tax revenues (both sales tax revenues and income tax revenues) were dropping in real terms and the already apparent state budget would have to be cut by about 5 percent.

Locally, the economic news was not all bad, however, and most people viewed the downturn as a temporary setback. One local banker predicted an upturn within 18 months—faster if the Fed cut interest rates.

Looking towards the future, Sunday River pumped another $2.5 million into expansion projects, while Mt. Abram announced its own capital expenditures.

A new ski shop opened on the Sunday River Road this past fall, and Sunday River Ski Resort continued building condominiums—although at a reduced pace. In Hanover, the Chamberlain Resort opened just in time for the Christmas season, and the early snow storms—beginning before Thanksgiving—gave a festive air to the area and brought in record crowds of early-winter skiers.

#2 Solid waste woes

If there was one growth industry in the area it was the removal of solid waste, while began costing local communities.

Individual area towns have responded to the challenges in similar fashion—by stepping up their own recycling efforts and by joining with nearby Oxford County towns to seek regional remedies.

Recycling became a reality in 1989, as area towns sought to reduce the volume of their waste stream—and the cost of disposing of it. Towns undertook the effort with varying degrees of commitment and success.

Opinions

Legislature was dead weight

If local towns managed to survive another year in relatively good shape, despite the economic downturn, it was no thanks to the Legislature. In fact, the Legislature added to the economic woes of municipalities and residents alike.

The Legislature had one job to do last year and that was to come up with a plan for property tax reform. Instead of dealing with that issue, the body indulged in partisan name-calling for the better part of the session. Then when it was time to go home last summer, the senators and representatives decided to simply throw money at the problem of runaway property taxes. They told Mainers who were suffering from property tax pains to fill out long forms explaining why and how much and seek a partial refund from the state.

The Legislature allocated $41 million for a two-year program of refunds to residents. The ludicrousness of the program is evident from the fact that Mainers are simply not utilizing it. If all the applications for refunds were honored, only about half the money available for refunds this year would be used. The process is too cumbersome, let alone that it doesn't touch the basic cause for the recent escalation of the property tax.

What is needed for property tax reform is for the Legislature to fully fund any mandated programs imposed on municipalities or school districts. As things stand now, the Legislature mandates and the property tax has to pay the bill.

During the last session, the Legislature further added to Mainers' economic hardships by cobbling together an extremely expensive set of bond referenda. Following a lackluster election, $105 million of these bonds were approved. The disgraceful thing is—aside from the fact that the Legislature lacked the guts to deal with the bond issues themselves—that this huge chunk of debt was approved by a mere 15 percent of registered voters. The Citizen suggested at the time that the Legislature adopt a measure whereby any statewide election (including referenda) would require a 50 percent turnout of registered voters to be considered legal and binding. Not a single local legislator indicated support for that idea.

The third blunder that added to the economic woes of Mainers was the 11th hour tax imposed on restaurants and bars. With no discussion, the meek-as-lambs legislators obeyed their leaders and told restaurants and lounges to begin collecting an additional 5 percent tax on all alcoholic beverages served, effective Dec. 1. This hurts the Bethel area right in the pocketbook, yet not a peep from local legislators (nor the local chamber of commerce).

The reality of 1990 is that economic times are tough and are not likely to improve very soon. The Legislature can perform a real service this year in two ways: don't start any new programs that can't be funded by the state, and end the session early to save taxpayers the $30,000 a day it costs to keep the body in session.

To the Editor

Your report on the Casco Northern actions in Maine was depressing. Although my business was put in grave jeopardy by their withdrawal, I didn't realize they were taking $30 million out of the state in order to bail out their parent, The Boston Boston.

It is a tragedy that this giant must climb out of its hole on the backs of Maine's small businesses who entrusted it with our futures.

Your editorial, "When You Need A Friend" could have gone somewhat further. Our "friend" was The Bethel Savings Bank which helped guide our refinancing efforts to replace Casco Northern. Thanks to Jim Delmar and The Bethel Savings Bank, we can con-

Your editorial, "When You Need A Friend" could have gone somewhat further. Our "friend" was The Bethel Savings Bank which helped guide our refinancing efforts to replace Casco Northern. Thanks to Jim Delmar and The Bethel Savings Bank, we can con-

By participating in the replacement financing with the Shawmut Bank, Bethel Savings has again demonstrated its commitment to the area. After the most difficult year in my 11 years of ownership—spent defending our business from Casco Northern's actions, we look forward to continued growth and a true partnership with a friend in the community.

Adult education starts winter term

The SAD #44 Adult and Community Education program will begin its instructional Cabin Fever Winter Term on Jan. 10 with a five week schedule of over 50 short courses and Cabin Fever one-semester specials. Adult and Community Education Director Cathy Newell commented that the Cabin Fever term has been a highlight of past years at SAD #44 providing a welcome break from winter routines. In planning the 1990 Cabin Fever term, Mrs. Newell has been able to schedule a variety of courses in Andover, Bethel and Locke Mills, plus both day and evening classes. Traditional favorites are blended with some new offerings providing a mixture of academic, enrichment, vocational, and special events.

A descriptive course guide was mailed last week to all postal addresses in SAD #44 towns as well as the neighboring towns of Hanover, Rumford Point and Rumford Center. Winter Park, North Waterford and Standish. Copies of the flyer are available at the Adult Education offices at Telstar High School, or by calling 824-2780. Telephone registrations are welcome from Jan. 2 to Monday Jan. 22.

Northwest Bethel

By CLARICE GIBSON

Christmas has come and gone and by tradition this gets in the paper we will be going into the 1990's. The last week has been very cold and can only remember two or three days the whole month of December when the temps have been up to even freezing. 24th-22, 25th-8, 26th-14, 27th-12, 28th-4, and the 29th-16. I called up a neighbor on Chapman Brook (the MacDougal's) who write on their calendar each morning the beginning temp of the day.

The 23rd Wilfred and Kim Gibson stopped in with their gifts and took time to put up our tree which I had bought and left in the barn. Theresa came with Frankie and spent the night. Christmas day Jim, Sue and Heather came from Freeport. Frankie, George and Theresa were here and Ira, Kristen and James came over. Ira and James left with their mom and dad. Roberta Peacock called later in the day and said that Wilfred Gibson had got to their house at 1:30 a.m. He flew down Christmas day as Kim had to work at the hospital Christmas day. Theresa was able to stay with us until Wednesday. Wednesday afternoon went to the doctor in North Bridgton. Thursday went to C.M.M.C. in Lewiston for tests.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chapman and Nick had for Christmas Mr. and Mrs. Tony Chapman, Alan, Louise Chapman and two daughter's and Sammy Chapman and friend. They talked to Frank and Ida Chapman and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Cummings in Florida.

Marilyn Swan and children of Sunday River had a slumber party. Gina Douglass and two boys Linda Howe and two boys, Thomas, Curtis and child of Norway and other neighbors of Marilyn were the 26th. Hot chocolate and lunch were enjoyed by all.

Christmas eve Bob and Linda Howe and a get-together for family and friends. Christmas day the Bob Howe family went to his folks, Bud and Joan Howe for a while and later went to Bud Howe's for a good meal and free beer.

Hirofumi Shimamura who works for a digital equipment Corp. in Japan was sent to Boston on company business after Dec. 17. He drove up to his Uncle Joe Shimamura and Jerry. Joe and his nephew went skating at Sunday River. The nephew was very impressed as in Japan they have to wait months for snow in the winter so he thinks the top is too crowded to ski well. Also have long lines in cafeterias. Hirofumi left Joe's the 19th and flew back to Japan the 20th.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Bean, Nathan and Matthew, entertained her brother Eric and Connie Gulbransen, Colin and Erica of Lovell for Christmas dinner. Nathan came the 22nd from John Hopkins in Maryland and will stay until the middle of January.

Eric and Alberta Angeline went to daughter Judy Coolidge and family for dinner. Later visited son Dick and Sue Angeline and family and stopped into grandson Ricky Angeline and Terry's. Barbara Angeline Willard talked to family members Christmas day.

The 23rd Charles and Ruth Mason had their family get-together with Lee, Terry, Beth, Anna, and Carolyn of Andover, Charles, Karen, Jennifer, Cindy, and Meridith Mason; John, Roxanne Corriveau, Scott, Jana, Monica, Tanya and Tina all of Gilead; Matthew, Melinda, Stephen and Brandon Bishop of Norway; Tammy Hanson and Karen and Pastor John Clayton. Grammie Murphy of Bridge Street sent up beans and rolls she had made which they had with hot dogs and ice cream.

Christmas day Charles and Ruth Mason and their daughter Melinda, Matthew, Stephen and Brandon Bishop, Norway, Carol Mason and Kara Mason. Sometime during the day all stopped in to see Grammie and Grampa Murphy of Bridge Street.

West Bethel

By CONSTANCE BROADBENT

Dear Uncle Al:

What a sandoff! That was the best funeral I've been to in months! And how kind of you to check out like that... without warning... without wincing. Granted, your life had been altered by illness, scarred by surgery, shortened by amputation. But, in spite of it all, you were able to walk and do the two good legs (one real, one artificial) and hail Death in your own doorway. That's so much better than wasting away in your bed.

Things seem to happen in sync with the life around us. It's sad to have you leave us abruptly, but your timing was good. The days of your participation in your funeral over the few days before Christmas were a true diversion for Aunt Nance (your wife), Cousin Jane (your daughter) and the rest of the family. They had been staring at the t.v., holding their collective breath for several days, ever since Jane's son, Michael (our godchild) had been shot down in the sky over Panama with the 2nd Airborne Division. Your dying was your gift to them in their time of great fear for Michael's life. You provided a way for them (including his young wife, Donna and baby daughter, Nicole) to get through the day... to devote their energy to seeing you wakened and eulogized, prayed over and buried.

Your Father Crowley brought a personal touch to the Requiem Mass when he spoke of your greatness and courage, and alluded to your sense of humor as is welcomed to us in the Church of the Last Minute, in Binghamton (Syracuse). The organist, which still belts down on a frigid day, and the substitutes which had to be found at the last minute... no big deal. He called it your one last job on us all... rather like a going-away game of Hide and Seek. He asked us to contemplate your passing into a new realm as we let go of your corporeal being. All of this was so meaningful, but it was by far the most joyful voice of a small choir of women who, I assume, had to hustle over from Hull in order to lift our spirits with their song. It worked! Their music warmed us and gave us pause to reflect on life and death as we know it.

I've been reflecting ever since. I think your letting go... of life, of fear, of old responsibilities, of the past... And as I let go of you in 1990, I've decided to forgive myself and all who have touched my life, so that we may be happy, here and now:

* I forgive myself for hiding at the top of the tall cherry tree when I was 10, causing Muddy great fears I paged into my arborial arms.

* I forgive myself for collecting live worms in the garden too, to be used as baits, as I scared the bejeebers out of older sister, Peg. I also forgive her for being a sissy and running down the road, just because the stuffed pheasant I was chasing her.

* I forgive me for sneaking up on Aunt Nell, the blind grandmother who taught me to knit and who tolerated my impishness, who heard me coming up behind her chair even though her eyes couldn't see me. And I forgive Aunt Ann, her sister, for trying to make me conform to her rules while Aunt Nell helped me to break them.

* I forgive myself for sometimes saying the right thing in the wrong way... as I also forgive myself for sometimes interpreting my teeth as boldness, or my boldness as a slap in their sensibilities.

* I let go of the need to feel guilty that I couldn't convince my sons to follow the path that I perceived as the right one. I also forgive myself for presuming that the choice was mine to make. And while I'm at it, I forgive myself for not taking the same path as my son, which it first presented itself to me. After all, that "not taken" allowed me to grope along on an alternate route, in order to enjoy unique and enriching experience under the aegis of hardship, crisis, and diligence.

* I will let go of the need to feel guilty

Sunday School Superintendent Marge Stinson announced the special offering from the Sunday School will go to benefit kids at the Anchorage Home for Children in Turner.

Nine young people from the youth group went to the teen retreat at Camp Berek in No. Turner. The Sunday School provided the transportation.

During the Wershin Hour 10:45 a.m. to noon, the Christmas cantata was presented. Helen Grover, choir director, Edna White pianist with Glenna Allen reading special parts. Pastor Grover presented each with a flower and a gift. Our appreciation to each for the excellent presentation.

The church family wishes everyone a blessed New Year.

for leaving my family behind in my (our) quest for new riches. Our decision to settle in West Bethel was a wise one that has provided us with new cohorts, new culture, new communion. I forgive me for leaving there and coming here.

I am finding it hard to get the heart to set aside in order... as I learn to enjoy each day as a gift. I will continue to give my love and my energy to those who need me, not under duress. I will make good and wise choices, and will not apologize for the making.

* Forgive you for leaving without saying "goodbye", and I forgive me for not telling you where I will be all the time you leave. I plant flowers, remembering the last time that you backed out of our drive, right over the marigolds!

Once everyone has digested your departure, life will continue to happen. Will you be there, will you be here? Will I be there, will you be here? I will say what you will want to say, Jim, Jim, Kathie and all your grandchildren and friends as the "Essence of Al".

Newry

By GIL SEELEY

Mr. and Mrs. Brian Hanscom and family visited Amy Hanscom at Rumford Community Center recently. Miss Diane Baker was an overnight guest of her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Herman Cummings of Bethel recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Baker, Darcie and Darren spent Christmas day with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Cummings in Bethel.

While we were attending our snowmobile Christmas party at the Municipal Building last Thursday evening, we heard the sound of a snow blower in back of the building. Guess who was there? None other than Brad Wright, one of our young fathers (fireman) cleaning up a space to flood for a skating rink so that the kids of Newry could have a safe place to skate. The young Newry fathers are busy

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

This morning giant shadows moved and danced like monsters ready to spring. The winter landscape and towering mountains seemed like a gigantic mural.

Outside there was the crack of the snow, as I walked to my mail box. The air was cold, -10°, still with the tangy crispness of winter. Such sparkling pristine of pure white!

To my right I caught a glimpse of motion. Then a little grayish brown head appeared above the snow. A gray squirrel had been digging in the bedrock snow, where he had made a hole to shelter himself. Up and down the little head popped. I walked on and he came out little by little and headed for the sunflower seeds. There were three others ahead of him, but he got his share. One little red squirrel got very little although he tried hard.

All this was beauty soft and strange, in which he had a part. The bright, the white, the delightful change was mirrored in my heart.

These questions came to me on this winter's morning; who left these emeralds on the snow, small and bright? Who scattered treasures in the dark, then, careless, went away?

I looked down pond to the highest point of land by the water. I thought about the water, the snow, the earth. Up from the water the shaft of sunlight. The pale sunlight cast threads of color on the snow which covered it today. Through the crystal coated trees here and there, a stately pine could be seen overlooking the pond.

December is closing with a snow-white collar. The hills are filled with winter down stuffing. All the eaves have petticoats showing. The air is cold and it chills him, but you feel all warm inside for a new year is coming.

Here in Greenwood City, Christmas was a pretty and happy time. There was a wedding at the home of Alpha DiArenzo. Her daughter became the bride of Kenneth Cox. Members of the family attended.

Eva Felton and daughter, Kathy, enjoyed their Christmas with Lucy and Jerry Bragg. John Curtis joined them.

Henry and Anna of her children and grandchildren at the farm. Four grandsons are with her for the year, Nick Strait, Troy Cogswell, Fred and Timmy Curtis. A new nephew, Louie Cogswell was with them on Christmas day.

I was at the farm with all of the Holmes families. There were 12 of us.

TRIO TO PERFORM

"Berg, Jones, and Jarvis"—whose work ranges in style from lyric modern dance to raucous physical theater—will perform in Bingham Auditorium on Thursday, Jan. 11 at 7:30 p.m., as part of the Gould Academy Programs in the Arts Series. The performances are open to the public, and the cost of admission is $2 for adults, and $1 for students 18 and under.

The trio is renowned for their use of movement and language in addressing such topics as world history, tourism, the Strategic Defense Initiative, and the cult of personal fitness. They have cultivated a grass-roots following in Maine through participation in the arts community, extensive teaching in schools and colleges, and performances of Maine's major arts centers. The New York Times describes the trio member Gwyneth Jones as "...a spifire of a dancer...irrepressible."

For more information, please contact Vicki Rakcliffe or Marguerite Graham at 824-3375.

shopping. They all were having their usual family gatherings for Christmas.

So. Woodstock

By OLIVE R. DAVIS

James Miclon and family were in Buckfield Sunday at his father's Ray Miclon's home for the Christmas get-together of their families. His brother was home from California and sister's family from Massachusetts were present also.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Clements entertained over the Christmas holidays. Mrs. Clements' mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Thompson, Belfast, spent three days with them. Her brother, John Rhode from Laconia, N.H., came and David Clements, their son who is attending the University of Delaware arrived for the Christmas season.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmerworth Hathaway were in Berlin, N.H. Tuesday and had lunch with their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Denis Fortier, then they continued to Milford, Mass., to their other daughter's home and stayed overnight with Mr. and Mrs. Michael Niro returning home Wednesday.

Mrs. Mildred Tyler of Oxford has been ill with double pneumonia and has been in her bed for two weeks. She is better now and is slowly getting around again.

Christmas day I drove to Bridgton to join Arthur Andrews' family for a Christmas party. There were 10 of us who were able to be present for the tree. They then went to Mr. and Mrs. Goldsmith home for dinner. Sharon had that ready for all to enjoy. The day was cloudy but the roads were very good.

Tuesday morning we had the snow which had been promised and it was slippery as it covered the roads.

Obituaries

RALPH E. REMINGTON

Ralph E. Remington, 88, of 15 Georgia Way, York, died Thursday, Dec. 14, 1989 at York Hospital after a long illness.

He was born in Framingham, Mass., a son of Henry E. and Annie Webster Remington.

He was a shipwright at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard, Kittery, for many years. A member of the York Fire Department and a past president of the Mobile Home Association of Winter Haven, Fla.

His wife, Ruth Hutchins Remington, died May 31, 1987.

Surviving are five sons, Edward R. of Livermore, Francis E. and Harold, both of Lovell, Colo., Stanley W. of Fayette and Robert M. of York; three daughters, Anne, Huntington, East Bethel, Kathleen DeVos of Skowhegan and Charlene Cote of Farmington, N.H.; and many grand and great-grandchildren.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, is planning a special service to be held on any set theme, they will be available for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

In our family picture album for 1989 are two snapshots, taken 24 hours apart, of the four of us standing in front of the Brandenburg Gate. One is taken from the American delegation, the other from the Soviet delegation.

It seems an odd setting for a smiling family portrait, yet it was the site our friends in both East and West Berlin chose for picture-taking, the Gate being so strong a symbol for all Germans.

What a joy it was, just before Christmas, to see pictures of the opening of the Berlin Wall at that very spot, signifying a new opening of hope and resolution.

My German friend says, "It is a miracle we did it." We didn't think that in our generation would experience that. We are overwhelmed and surprised how quickly many things are changing in this country."

She goes on, "We don't know yet if we will succeed in changing the structures thoroughly too, though it is exactly what is needed which is necessary to become truly democratic."

The lecture is part of Gould Academy's series of talks on current world affairs. For more information, please contact Dr. Harry Dresser or Kirk Siegel at 824-0161.

MORTON HOSTS SLIDE SHOW

John Morton, member of a recent joint Soviet-American veterans expedition in the mountains of Soviet Uzbekistan, will give a slide presentation at Gould on Tuesday in Gehring Hall at 7:30 p.m., on Tuesday, Jan. 9th. There is no charge and the public is heartily encouraged to attend.

Bob Rose, trip leader and former Hurricane Island Outward Bound School director, invited Morton to be part of the American delegation to the Soviet delegation.

Robert L. will take part in three selection races for the World Junior Championships, against the top junior and senior biathletes in the nation, competing in biathlon's unique combination of cross-country skiing and 22 calibre marksmanship.

While a berth on the U.S. Team is not a highly likely event for the locals, they all have at least two years of experience, at times difficult, but overwhelmingly positive and heartwarming. Although the American veterans have had the benefit of two decades to reflect on their experience, they found that they had much in common with the Soviet veterans who had fought so recently in Afghanistan.

American participants include a former three-star general and numerous veterans who are current or past Outward Bound instructors. Morton is an experienced speaker, eager to share his story and slides of international friendship.

MUSICIAN

The musician Don Rollins will be the featured entertainment at the Bethel Universal Church's New Year's Eve coffeehouse.

Rollins' music includes songs about social issues, addictions and personal growth. An open stage segment will also be included for area poets, musicians and other performing artists.

Admission is $1. Refreshments will be sold. The coffeehouse will begin at 9 p.m. and continue past midnight.

What would we hope is that we realize how important it is for them to know that they are in community with fellow believers here and in all places in the world.

In her letter, our friend expresses her gratitude for our interest in their situation. Our concern, faith and prayers are vital to our brothers and sisters who work for justice and peace.
